in fact, value for value, it is one of the cheapest drinks and one of the most economical foods that can be obtained. A cup of hot Bovril costs less than a drinkof whisky, and while giving a more genuine and lasting warmth than the latter, contains, in addition, the nutritive principles of beef worth many times its cest. Old fashioned beef teas and mest exunder more pretentious inodern names contain none of the NUTRITIVE properties of beef. Baron Liebig himsel

ELLIS KADOORIE CHINESE SCHOOL SOCIETY.

Distribution of Prizes at Honam

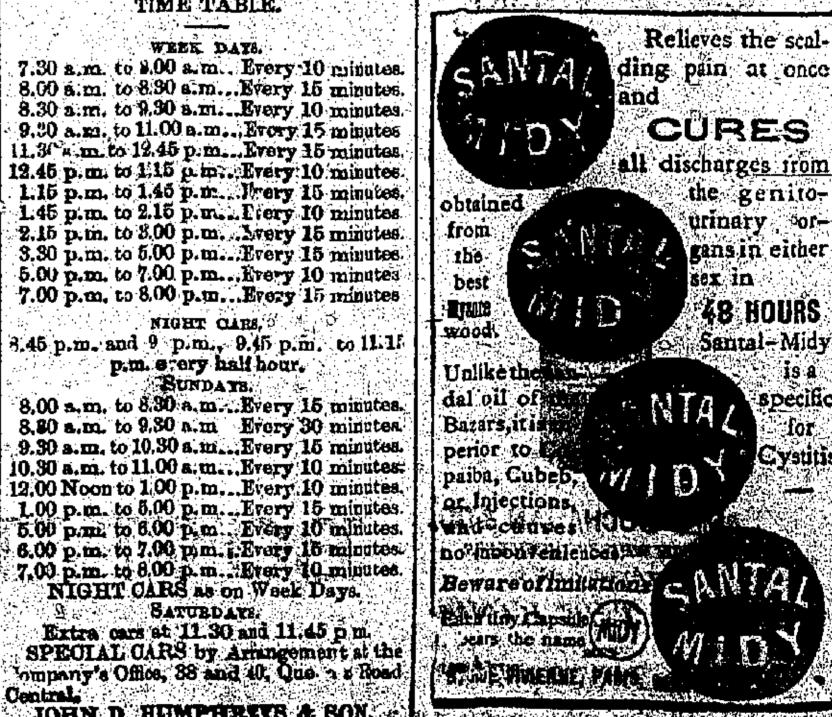

College. This function took place on the 21st inst. when those present included Mr. Ellis Kadoorio, President of the Society, Mr Lau Chu Pak, Hon. Sec., Mr Hugh Kirkhope. M.A., Canton College, Mr Young Hee, Chinese Inspector of Schools, Hongkong, Mrs Young Hee, and Mr Ho In Hing, Local Secy.

The headmaster of the school, Mr John

Stirling, M.A., first read his report, which was as follows :- Mr Kadoorie, Mr. Young Hee, and Gentlemen, it is with great pleasure that I submit my first report to you for consideration. You oponed this school on the 13th of May last, so it has now undergone a fair trial. Still it would bu tash to draw any decisive, conclusions just yet. If we reflect for a moment however, we connot but fix our attention on one or two notable facts. The school has been an absolutely free course. No objection has been taken to it and no unfriendly feeling has interfered with its smooth working. Again the demand for an English education has proved to be very popular. and the general style of the education which the Society sims at providing is what is best appreciated here. On these grounds I think that you, the promoters of the Society, have much reason to congratulate yourselves on establishing this school. In the opening week there were 170 puplis in attendance and a fortnight after we had 24. Later our numbers were limited only by the accommodation of the school which is seated for 283. The average number on the roll for the last six months has been 296 while the average daily attendance has been 258. Judging from the class examiontions held during the session, the 585 work which was at first very slipshod has shown considerable improvement. although great difficulties have to be The hooks we use are doubtless the best which the market can at present supply, but they are not very satisfactory for Chinese students. The study of English, might be a much simpler task than it now presents itself and it is to be hoped that such books will soon be obtainable as will lighten the difficulty. Regarding physical exercise, our limited space has made any form of it impossible, but the ground newly acquired will obviate that drawback next session. Instruction in Chinese is given in the afternoons. This is done by thoroughly capable mas ers and is an indispensable acquisi ion on the part of scholars. In conclusion, I wish to record my indebtedness to my able and willing staff of assistants, and to our worthy Local Secretary, Mr Ho In Hing while to you, Mr Kado rie and to you, Mr Lau Chu Pak, I CWB a deeper debt of gratitude for the courtesy and sympathetic feeling extended to me as a stranger in a strange land. Mr Lau Chu Pak, who next spoke said: -Mr Stirling, we have all listened to your able and exhaustive report with great attention and interest. On behalf of the Society tender you and your energetic assistants my heat thanks for the creditable manner in which you have carried out everything in connection with this school. To you, ladies and gentlemen, my best thanks are also due for the honour you have done us o favouring us with your presence here. B. ys. I am highly pleased with you for the creditable and obedient manner in which you have conducted yourselves during the last session. It is true, on one occasion, I had good reason to be dissatisfied with the conduct of some of you, but then you corrected your error the moment you became sensible of it. In so doing you conformed with the traditional rule of your country that whoever corrects his error the moment it is pointed out to him, is a woring man. Boys, yourdn y in school is the same as at home. You must respect, your masters as you respect your teachers and as you re pect your parents. Some of you have studied the classics of your country so well that any reference by me to the wise sayings therein contained is alcount un-necessary. But in the three-word classic there are a few passages which I should like you to recall co stantly to mind. These passages were taught you the very year your school career commenced and they are: Study when you are young and act on the knowledge, so that when you come to manhood you may benefit your king and those under you. Gentlem n, you are aware this school is one of the few that the society has so far been able to open in this huge empire. In my opinion, and I may say in the country of many others who have taken the trouble to study the requirements of Chins, they meet one of the most urgent wants of the day. Under the prevailing system in our country, the education which is open to our youths is one, which was no doubt very useful 2,000 years ago, but in this 20th century it is weefully behind the age and hopelessly inadequate for improving the Chinese. The Society does not for a moment pretend that by opening this class of schools China can be educated up to the same standard of enlightenment as European countries, but it does hope that, having an example set them, my countrymen will exert themselves to seek further development and gradually work thomselves up to full competency. It has come to my knowledge that some are belittling the work of this society and are clamouring for a higher 1726 grade of education. But are these men cognizant of the fact that it is necessary to lay the foundation before constructing the roof? Without a preliminary knowledge of the modern languages, the Chinese cannot and should not be taught sciences. doubt a me express it as their opinion, that if all the scientific books were translated into Chinese and given to the Chinese to read in their schools they would become so proficient in those stodies as to be able to hold their own with foreigners. But they lose eight of the fact that the Chinese teachers who have read some of such translations could make neither head nor tail of them. I certainly say that in founding this society. Mr Kadoorie has taken a step in the right direction. China wants this class of schools to diffuse Western education all over her dominions, thereby paving the way for higher education. When I say my countrymen owe a deep debt of gratitude to him, I am sure I am simply echoing the feelings of you all sitting here now (applause.) Well boys, you and your masters have worked hard enough for this year and deserve a good rest. From to-day you will be given four weeks' holidays. I wish you happy and prosperous New Year. These of you who have not won a prize must not lose in the end your efforts will surely be rewarded (applause). Mr Young Hee then presented the prizes to 50 of the most successful pupils. Mr Ho In Hing, the local secretary, highly complimented both the teachers and pupils on the work done, and encouraged the latter to take a complete course so as to qualify for high positions in future. He deplored the a tion of those merchants who having promised subscriptions to th Society had refused to pay up, thereby ne-cessitating the collection of subscriptions heart but should keep on trying hard and

The headmaster then called for three cheers for Mr Young Hee, who presented the prizes, and for all the visitors who were

Mr Young Hee sald :- Mr Stirling. ladies and gentlemen. It affords me great pleasure even to be present at such an important function as this; but to have the honour of presiding thereat and the privil-lege of presenting the prizes makes me feel duly grateful to you for the great honour which you have so kindly conferred upon me. I have much pleasure in congratulating Mr Stirling and his able staff on the excellent result which has been attained by this college during its first session. Whilst doing so, I cannot help referring to the origin of this worthy institution. I think you are all aware that we have amongst us to-day two gentlemen who took the initiative and are principally responsible for the founding of the new well known Ellis Kadoorie Society by which this College is established and maintained. They are your worthy President, Mr Kadoorie and your energetic accretary, Mr Lau Chu Pak—the former so munificently endowed the Society, and the latter at great self sacrifice, worked so patriotical-ly and energetically in bringing the objects of the Society to such a successful issue. I may say Mr Lau Chu Pak's mission was by no means an easy one, on the contrary, he was more than once confronted with great opposition from some persons who foolishly and muliciously wished to oppose any form of progress in our country; but fortunately his motto was like that little verse 'try again,' which we have just had the pleasure of hearing recited, and he tried again till he succeeded. I must now congratulate him and Mr Kadoorie on the marked success which has attended their efforts. When we recall the fact as to how weak the Chinese Empire is at present, how urgently she is in need of reform, and that education being the recognized stepping stone to national reform, we cannot help coming to the conclusion that these gentlemen have, by their actions in founding the Society, and its schools, proved themselves great benefactors to the Chinese both individually and as a nation and to them everlasting gratitude is due. My sincerest wish is that more gentlemen like Messrs. Kadoorio and Lau Chu Pak would come forward and render the poor Chinese that help which they should, but do not get from their own Government. As to you boys, I think, after the most instructive remarks addressed by your worthy secretary, I need not say much more to you. I sincerely wish to see you thoroughly understand the benefits to be derived from an English education, and take full advantage of the splendid opportunity now offered you by the Ellis Kadeerie Society. I will now conclude by wishing the Society, and all ofyou, continued success and prosperity. To show our appreciation of the kind efforts of all the contlemen who had assisted in founding the Society and this College I ask you to join me in giving them three

Mr Lau Chu Pak then called upon the boys to give three cheers for the Headmaster. This done Mr Stirling said :-Boys, I thank you for your hearty choors and I take this opportunity of saying a few words to you before we break up for the holidays. I have now received Mr Braidwook's report on the examination held a week ago. I may tell you that on the whole it is a very good one. He says, 'results are eminently satisfactory.' This I am sure will give you as much encouragement as it gives me. But I feel confident that we can do better still. This is only our first session. Surely next session, improvement will be made on account of the experience gained this session. You are all going off for a long holiday. Thope you will enjoy it and I wish you all a good and prosperous New Year. There is one thing more I would like to say. Many of you are anxious to get situations as soon as possible. Well we all want to see you get situations, but we also want to see you get good Do not be in too great a hurry Get a thorough education first. Do not be satisfied with a little knowledge of English. It is remarkable how few Chinese there are who can speak English really well, and there is a great demand for such men. Make an example of the two gentlemen who have spoken an well in English to-day and you will never regret it. You will be the better for it all your lives and so will your country. You all say that China is weak at present and would like to see her powerful. How is that to be done? Most of you think it is by fighting. Not at all. Nowadays a country is considered great only according if its inhabitants are well educated and honest. If you want to benefit your country, be intelligent, be honest. It is only when China has such inhabitants that she will be respected by other countries and become truly great (Cheers.) The proceedings teminated by Mr.

Kirkhope proposing a vote of thanks to Mr He Iu Hing.

When the Brough Comedy Co. open their season here, a fortnight hence, several of the best old and new successes in the dramatic way will be placed on sample. For the first night, February 17th, Are You a Mason! has been chosen. Their performance of this play in Calcutta evoked very cordial praise. It is an English piece, not at all American, as, we notice, it is said to be; and it is just as clever as could be. In fact, it was so smart that, within almost mail time of its production, Are You a Buffalo was ushered into existence in the United States. In addition to this bright comedy, the Broughs carry the following repertoire: -

Second in Command, Lady Huntworth's Experiment, Mrs Dane's Defence, When we were Twenty-one, The Magistrate. Importance of Being in Earnest Sowing the Wind, Facing the Music, Second Mrs Tanqueray, Niobe, and A Village Priest. Cast and properties have been strengthened, we are told.

We cannot help thinking that the Admiral's great age and exceptionally honourable and protracted record of service, would justify the Admiralty in permanently attaching a naval lieutenant to Sir Henry only a co-operation similar to that of the Keppel as A.D.C., so as to secure that the Powers in China and elsewhere. Cholera at Bangkok.

The Bangkok Times of the 19th ult raports:-It is with much regret that we have to record the death of Nai Rajanati son of Chao Phya Bhaskarawongse, which took place from cholera at 3.36 on Saturday afternoon. He was taken ill at his office in the Palace about 6 p.m. the previous evening. In accordance with the custom in such cases, the body was buried on Saturday night, being interred at midnight in the 'mount' in the grounds of Wat Prayurawongse, the Wat beside the residence of deceased's father with whom he lived. Nai Rajanati was a bright and likable young man, who had many friends in the European community. He received part of his education in Europe, and on his return he was appointed to the Mahatlek. At the time of his death he was, and had been for several years, on the staff of His Majesty's Private Secretary's Department. He took much interest in the affairs of the Sports Club, and was a prominent owner of ponies running at the various race meetings. The news of his sudden death caused a painful shock, and Chao Phya Bhaskarawongse and the other members of the family have the sympathy of the whole community.

For the present all we feel entitled to May, by way of comment, is that the liberation of the persons charged on the first information supplied to the authorities need not necessarily be regarded as the finale of the Canton New Year's story.

Yesterday was China New Year's day. There is the usual interruption in business consequent upon the native festival.

As a result of last year's bad times, several of the Chinese chartering hongs will not continue after the helldays. Some, however, have survived, and, with perhaps the reconstruction of some firms successfully effected, more business in the way of time charters may now be looked for. Meanwhile, natives. as is their wont, will be ho'ding back for some 'propitious day' by their calendar to start the new year's operations upon, and, until then, for just a short while, affairs generally will be

PIGEONS OF QUALITY.

Police-Sergeant McSwayed accomplished something like a record in show prize winning at Kowloon, on Saturday, when his birds walked away with all the trophies. Certainly they were the pick of the lot, and although the Show was the first of its kind held in the Colony, the collection was not a poor one. The gathering was visited by His Excellency Sir Henry Blake and Lady Blake, who showed cordial interest; in what they saw. It is proposed to project a Pigeon Show on a far bigger scale, and the date, July 4, has been mentioned. -Mr James Logan deserves a word of congratulation, he being the prime mover of the experimental meeting, on the success which it achieved. The awards were decided by ballot, as follows:-

1st prize, $30.—Pair of blue black. barred homers; Police-Sergeant McSwayed 2nd prize, $20 .- Pair of black homors Police-Sergeant McSwayed. 3rd prize, $15 .- Pair of white Indian tumblers; Police-Sergeant McSwayed, Very highly commended,—Red homor; Police-Sorgeant McSwayed. Bighly commended.—Blue dragon Police-Sergeant McSwayed.

Another admirable performance of His Excellency the Governor was given by the Amateur Dramatic Club on Saturday night. The principal box was occupied by the Viceregal party, and the house was both numerous and appreciative. The final performance takes place to-night.
